Friday event highlights from our partners

1500: Dryppende Stof – Sapphic Fragments, Location: Ny Carlsberg Glyptotek, Copenhagen (19-21 Aug)
A newly-composed opera performance at the Glyptotek, based on Mette Moestrup's new version of works by the iconic poet Sappho. For generations, the poems of Sappho of Lesbos (c. 630 BCE) have been a source of curiosity on account of their erotic content, sensibility, and depiction of love between women. After thousands of years, the universal themes of Sappho's poems are still topical. In DRYPPENDE STOF, those themes will find expression in a celebration of the feminine and a tribute to queer communities.

1500-1700: Drop-in-baptism reminder for transgender, Location: St Petri Church, Malmö
Opportunity to hear your true name and pronoun declared in church in a reminder of your baptism. Stand proud and rejoice in the name of God.

At the service, we will celebrate our queer diversity within a spiritual space. The theme will be 'Celebrating love Together – Gathering All'. The service is ecumenical, so we are a mixed group of pastors from different Christian Churches organizing it. We are attempting that there will be an even greater variety of queer-friendly church people being represented. All denominations and all people are welcome.

2000-2215: Pride, Location: Royal Danish Theatre, Copenhagen (18-22 Aug)

With Pride, the Royal Danish Theater invites you to celebrate the right to be the person you are, a performance staged while Copenhagen hosts WorldPride and EuroGames. Pride and shame are emotions evoked when daring to show the world the true you. Internationally acclaimed German writer / director Falk Richter turns the spotlight on these emotions seen from an LGBTI + perspective in his new, international performance at the Main Stage of the Royal Playhouse. Throughout August you can listen to 1000 years of Copenhagen queer history at the Museum of Copenhagen. At 10 locations in the permanent exhibition about Copenhagen, you can, by using your mobile phone, listen to stories about people who one way or another deviated from the current norms, all the way back from the age of the Vikings and up until today. Stories about difference, about the right to love and about the various circumstances that influenced the expression of love through the ages. Just bring your mobile phone and have your QR code reader ready to scan the QR codes in the exhibitions then you will get access to these small glimpses of queer history.

1400-1830: Leif Holmstrand 'Perilous Party', Location: Inkonst, Malmö (13-21 Aug)
Malmö's best artist fills our spaces with crochet, trash, sad flags and peculiar objects. It's art that makes you laugh with tears in your throat, that makes you think about bodies and dreams, art that is never predictable. Perilous Party moves in a disintegrating and unsecured queer space.

1600-1730: Pride in the North Atlantic, Location: Nordatlantens Brygge, Copenhagen
Since 1999, Reykjavik Pride has filled the city's streets with people and celebrated diversity. Nuuk Pride has also been doing this since 2010, as has Tórshavn Pride, which is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year. And both Iceland, the Faroe Islands and Greenland have strong LGBTI+ movements that have left clear traces on the development of society and the debate in the three countries. Hear short presentations and get answers to your questions when we open the doors for an afternoon about LGBTI+ and Prides in the North Atlantic. Danish language.

1700-2000: Bubbly on the Quay, Location: Nordatlantens Brygge, Copenhagen

This exhibition is the first major retrospective of Leonilson's work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

1000-1700: Exhibition (in)visible - abstractions and fragments of queerness, Location: Malmö

Konstmuseum (13-22 Aug). What emerges when we look at an art collection from a queer perspective? The exhibition (in)visible departs from Malmö Art Museum's collection, presenting artworks ranging from the early 20th century to the current day.

1300-1800: Psychopathia Sexualis, Location: Overgaden, Copenhagen (13-15 & 17-22 Aug)

1500-1800: The Mysteries of Lust, Location: Gamle Scene, Copenhagen (18 & 22 Aug)

The music ranges from Wagner and Mozart to Cher and Queen. The enigmatic Mr. D has invited guests to a late-night soiree at a drab suburban motel. The scene is set for a series of sensuous, mysterious events. What revelations await Mr. D's unsuspecting guests? Polish stage director Krystian Lada presents a startling and riotous performance about love, longing and death - dealing with the diversity of life and desire.
